CLARK AT THE BOTTOM OF IT

JUDGE MONTGOMERY SAYS THAT HE CAUSED ALL THE TROUBLE.

Went to Treasurer Worth and Threatened Him, and Said that If White was Paid There Would be "Three Vacant Chairs Over Yonder."

Associate Justice W. A. Montgomery took the stand at 10:50, and was examined by Captain Cooke for the defense, says the Raleigh Times.

Judge Montgomery was licensed to practice law in 1867, and continued actively in the profession until he went on the supreme court bench January 1st, 1895. The first officeholding case after he became judge was Wood vs. Bellamy and was decided on the doctrine that office is property as first enunciated in Hoke vs. Henderson.

The Day case differed in that it delegated the duties of the office to three men instead of one. Judge Montgomery said that the decision from Wood vs. Bellamy to the Day case was unanimous, "and I should say when in the first case we decided on this principle that an office is property that I held off in conference longer than the others for I was inclined to think an office in the American government should be a public agency under the control of the Legislature, but the other judges took a different view and Justice Clark influenced me more than any one less in coming to a conclusion to adhere to the principle laid down in Hoke vs. Henderson."

The first dissent from this doctrine was in the Day case. Judge Avery was on the bench from 1895 to 1898, while Montgomery was judge. More care and attention was given the office holding cases than any others. The judges in these cases consulted all the authorities and used the utmost diligence and patience in arriving at their decision. (The prosecution interposed numerous objections and Judge Montgomery was not allowed to state any motive of the court.)

He was then questioned on the case of White against Hill, all the judges concurring except Judge Clark. In the White suit against the Auditor Judges Clark and Montgomery dissented but on entirely different grounds. The mandamus came up then.

When Judge Montgomery was asked to tell all about the matter he said that he would do so, although there were some unpleasant things that he had rather avoid if he had his preference.

SCENE IN CONFERENCE.

Judge Montgomery said: "On the day or day before Judge Clark filed his dissent in the case of White against the Auditor, I was going home in the afternoon and met Governor Russell and Treasurer Worth. I joined them. I did not open the discussion of the matter but our conversation soon got on the dissenting opinion of Judge Clark. Mr. Worth said that Judge Clark had just left his office and threatened and brought every influence to bear to keep him from paying the money for White's claim, saying that he would be impeached, and his bondsmen held liable and if it was paid there would be three vacant chairs in the Supreme Court when the Legislature met in June. This conversation was in May. I knew that Judge Clark and Mr. Worth were friendly, and asked if he invited him. He said Judge Clark came to his office of his own accord and told him this. I asked, 'Well, did you ever hear of such a things before?' He said he never did. 'What are we going to do?' I asked, and Mr. Worth said, 'Follow the court.' This was in May and I may have mentioned, I think I did, to some one this matter and referred to Judge Clark's act as unbecoming. In October

'When this becomes before open court and I did not understand what he said, but when I heard it was this case, I said, 'Why don't you go before the clerk to issue this process, and if he does not then the court can act.' Harris went away. When Col. Kenan came in and asked about the writ, I said, "When this comes before open court on motion you will hear from me." When Col. Kenan came before conference later and asked advice Furches answered promptly: 'Issue the writ, the case justifies it and it is your duty.' Douglas was not so positive. Col. Kenan was unsatisfied and came back later, and I said, 'Colonel, don't issue it; you know my dissent; that is my opinion I don't want to be dragged into this thing. My record was clear and what I did should be from the open bench.'

Judge Clark then wanted a protest he had filed with the clerk spread upon the minutes and in the records of the court. Judge Furches said that the court could not allow that; he had his dissent in the reports and there was nothing before the court. I said, 'Judge Clark the time has come when I am bound to speak out. Your opinions are so full of appeals to the people and political learning that I can never agree to that protest when there is nothing before the court. You have been at the bottom of all the trouble. The newspaper attack have come from you and I know it.' Judge Clark said Treasurer Worth sent for him. I said Worth said that you came to him of your accord. Judge Clark said, 'You will not allow my protest in the record so please return my copies. I gave him my copy, but Judge Furches said that so much had been said that he preferred to keep his.'

There was no change in the protest so far as he knew.

CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Judge Montgomery said he did not think that he talked with Col. Kenan about the writ before Harris came into court. He never wrote an opinion sarcastic towards the General Assembly and all his opinions throughout "the disgraceful scramble for office" had the ring of the lawyer and the judge. He always construed the laws of the Legislature and not their motives. In his dissent in the Beddingfield case he said that he would not attempt to apologize for or to construe motives of the Legislature. These office holding cases came thick and fast after 1899, he admitted, and he grew very tired of them.

So Judge Clark's opinions were polemics and the other judges' opinions were not?

I did not discover it in them and I did in Judge Clark's.

Did not the condition become such that the Supreme court was in a political brawl?

I will not answer that question unless directed by the President. There was division in the court, but the conferences were general strictly legal.

In reply to further questions he said: "Judge Clark influenced me largely in reaching a conclusion in Wood vs. Bellamy; his opinion was then strong that an office is property. Then later his opinion in the Beddingfield case was strong that it would have convinced me if I had not been influenced by him in Wood vs. Bellamy at the start. I told him so on our way home, etc."

"Well, you and he were quarrelling on the road?" said Mr. Watson.

This irritated Judge Montgomery, and Mr. Watson continued: "Well, you not fight?"

Mr. Watson then questioned him on the decisions of the office holding cases.

Further, Judge Montgomery said that a Legislature could elect a man for any length of time, and he could not be legislated out of office until his term expired. Also, where a specific fund is provided for a special office no Legislature can withdraw it while work is done the term not having expired.

There were some passes between witness and counsel over the way the White cases were argued before the court and Judge Montgomery got the case confused slightly as to the one Mr. Busbee appeared in. "That is right," said the judge, "It was White vs. Hill, not White vs. the Auditor. You have asked a thousand questions.

THE ELKS "ROASTED."

Mr. Garland Daniel Gives the Boys an Oyster Banquet.

If the liberality of private members continues to manifest itself as it has been doing recently, the order of Elks bids fair to become the most popular thing going. Following up Mr. C. N. McAdoo's complimentary dinner given at Clegg's last week, Mr. Garland Daniel last night gave the members an oyster roast, that was participated in and hugely enjoyed by about fifty Elks.

The oysters, several barrels of them, were brought from Norfolk and roasted to a turn. The roast was served at the Masonic hall over the Greensboro National Bank. With the oysters went sandwiches, beer and ginger ale. The occasion was informal, and after the eating some impromptu speaking was indulged in. Among those who made talks were Messrs. Julian Price, Woodall, of Danville; E. W. Fetzer, of Charlotte; N. J. O'Brien, C. N. McAdoo, A. B. Kimball, Charles L. Van Noppen and Frederick K. Abbott. Messrs. Van Noppen, Kimball and W. R. Patterson were just initiated into the lodge.

The company gave Mr. Daniel a rousing vote of thanks with a hip, hip, hurrah.

WILL NOT RUN.

Mayor Taylor Announces that He Will Not Stand for Re-Election.

To the Citizens of Greensboro:

I take this method of announcing to the citizens of Greensboro that I will not be a candidate for the office of Mayor at the approaching May election.

I highly appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me in the past and will always take the same lively interest which I now have in anything that concerns the welfare of what I believe to be the coming city of the State; yet having chosen the profession of the law as my life work, I cannot but feel that my entire time should be devoted to it.

Again assuring you of my grateful appreciation for your past support, I am, Most respectfully,

Z. V. TAYLOR.

A Fine Building.

Contractor, J. N. Longest, has just put up for the Greensboro Loan & Trust Company, something that looks exceedingly like a building that is a building. A few more such brick houses and granite monuments like the Colonial column will gladden the heart of old North Carolina.

OBSERVER.

Mr. Ramsey Here.

Mr. W. J. Ramsey was in the city last night on his way from Durham to Little Rock, Ark., where on Sunday Evangelist Sam Jones will begin a meeting. Mr. Ramsey is the singing partner of Evangelists Sam Jones and George Stewart. He is well known in this city, his voice has been heard several times.

A Black Mrs. Nation.

Chicago, March 20.—Adopting the smashing methods of Mrs. Carrie Nation, Lottie Jones, colored, went forth on the South Side today to wield an axe in a crusade against crap games and policy shops. She began her work by wrecking a coal office at 2511 Dearborn street, where she found her spouse engaged in a game of craps. When she had smashed the windows and reduced the furniture in the coal office to kindling wood, she shouldered her weapon of destruction and started in search of a policy shop where her husband had been losing money. When she reached the police shop, however, she found it closed. She says she will go out again tomorrow and smash every place where her husband is wont to gamble.

Mr. R. West, student at Oak Ridge, was in the city this morning.

THE AMERICAN EAGLE.

On the Treasury Notes of 1880 He Takes the Form of a Well Known Quadruped.

If one will take a $10 treasury note of the series of 1880 and look down in the lower centre of its face along the line of the official signatures, he will see a small pen and ink drawing of the far famed American bird, the eagle. There is nothing singular about this so far, as the old bird usually appears in conspicuous places on American currency. But just turn the bill upside down and look at the screamer, when 'lo', and behold! instead of the eagle, a donkey's head will appear. The head is perfect, and when once seen, cannot be cleared away, no matter how one looks at it, for the picture of the head is not an illusion, but an actual picture.

There is a story connected with the picture, which Postmaster Glenn, having seen sometime ago, told this morning to a crowd who were looking at the bill. The picture is there as clear as A B C, and this is the story of how it came. An Englishman was employed in the treasury department as a designer, and for some reason, was given a thirty days' notice of dismissal. He became miffed at the discharge, and during the thirty days conceived the idea of getting revenge. He was then engaged in making the design for the 1880 series of bills, which he finished, and they were engraved and printed. After he left the department he wrote back to the chief: "You people think your American eagle is something. Invert the bill and you will see what he really is." This was the first intimation that the man had skilfully constructed the eagle so that by simply turning it upside down it became a donkey's head. Look at it and see.

A New Broom Factory.

Among the many small industries that are assisting materially in the growth and development of Greensboro are to be counted the broom factories here. A new one has recently been started by Messrs. R. L. Woodard, J. T. and W. T. McCulston doing business under the name of the Gate City Broom Works. They have been in operation only a short time. Their factory is located over the hardware store of Woodard & McCulston, on South Elm street. The capacity of the factory is twelve dozen brooms per day. The proprietors are hustling business people, and will of course make a success of their business.

To Meet in San Francisco.

Mr. E. J. Hutchison, of New York, Traveling Passenger Agent of the Union Pacific Railway, spent today in the city in the interest of his railway and the International Epworth League Convention, which meets in San Francisco July 17-21. Mr. Hutchison will visit the more prominent towns in the State, distributing information concerning the convention, and incidentally showing the advantages of reaching San Francisco over his route, which gives a reduced rate of one first class fare for the round trip.

Going for Treatment.

Mr. William Dark, accompanied by his brother, Mr. Walter Dark, of Ore Hill, spent last night in the city and left this morning for High Point, where Mr. Dark will remain some time taking treatment under Dr. H. P. McClelland of the Hammer School of Science and Healing. Mr. Dark, when a child was run over by a wagon which crushed his skull and he is subject to spasms, some times having several in one day. He is a cousin of Mr. L. F. West, of this city.

Refreshments will be served by ladies of the Aid Society of West Market Street church at the residence of Mrs. H. B. Tatum, on Friday afternoon from 3 to 10 o'clock. A "fish pond" will be a special feature of the evening, for the children.

FOR A FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY

PROF. GRIMSLY PREPARING TO BEGUN ACTIVE WORK.

Other Towns Have Them and Greensboro Must Keep Up With Them.

North Carolina is making great progress educationally as well as industrially. The large appropriations for educational purposes made by the last Legislature mean that the State is in earnest about the education of all the people. But nothing is more significant than the appropriation of $5,000 to encourage the establishment of public school libraries. This is recognition by the State of the library as a factor in the education of the "whole people" and as a part of its educational system.

The free public library is quite as important as the free public school. No educational system is complete with out it. It is the people's university. Here many may make up for lost opportunities at school; here all may gain greater knowledge and broader culture.

One of Greensboro's greatest needs is a good free public library, one that will be a credit to the city. Asheville, Durham and Raleigh have one; Charlotte will soon have. Greensboro must maintain her reputation and be in the lead in educational matters. She must have one. We have excellent rooms in the City Hall and $600 to begin with. I believe the people of Greensboro will furnish the balance needed. They will soon be asked to do it, and I hope they will respond liberally and cheerfully. It will be for the good of all from a business, intellectual, moral, and social stand point; therefore, let every one contribute according to his means. We want the small as well as the large contributions. The gifts will be for a free public circulating and reference library, conducted according to the best methods of conducting such libraries and controlled by a Board of Trustees as provided for in the Scales Library Act.

As chairman of the Library Committee of the State Library and Historical Association I shall, in a day or two, appoint a committee to take the matter in hand and push the work to completion.

G. A. GRIMSLY.

Where to Put Your Stamp.

The new stamping machine recently put in the postoffice is a very ingenious affair, and does the stamping of letters about four times as fast as a clerk could do it by hand. The boys are proud of it, and taking a delight in stamping letters with it.

To operate the machine the letters to be stamped are first straightened, and then placed in the feed box, a crank is turned and the letters are automatically fed through the machine one at a time, and as they go through the hour, day, month, and year are stamped upon them and the postage stamp cancelled. The postoffice boys would be glad if people in stamping their letters would always place the stamp on the up right hand corner of the envelope, and not on the other corners.

Staples Will be Tried Here.

The case of North Carolina against Martin Staples for murder in Surry county has been removed to the United States Court at Greensboro and will stand for trial at the April term of that court. Mr. Staples is a revenue officer and the killing occurred the 23 of last December while he was on a raid. It is claimed that the killing was done in the performance of his duty as a revenue officer. Mr. Staples is a Virginian and some time ago the Governor of that state was asked that a requisition for him be given. This was done but it was learned that feeling in Surry county against him was so bitter that he would in all probability be lynched if he were carried back. The Governor then recalled the requisition papers and the case was removed to the United States Court.

Dr. Battle is Convinced.

Until yesterday Dr. T. J. T. Battle was one of those persons who did not believe that the ordinary boy carries a junk shop in his pockets, but he believes it now. He saw the young son of Sheriff Jordan with a suspicious looking pocket and called him up for examination. Here is what he found in two trousers pockets, by actual note made with paper and pencil:

1 worn out glove,
1 clothes pin,
2 empty shells,
Piece of Carbon,
1 20 penny nail,
1 8 penny nail,
2 matches,
1 stick,
Piece of harness,
Piece of rubber teething ring,
10 rocks,
4 gun wads,
16 acorns,
3 seed envelopes,
2 handkerchiefs,
2 pieces of glass,
2 buttons,
1 brass button,
1 bullet,
3 samples of cloth,
1 pill box,
Piece of brass watch chain,
Pieces of wire,
Handful of boxwood leaves,
3 peas.

The Telegram is in receipt of a letter, the beginning of which is:

"After carefully checking over our records we find we have received no order from you, notwithstanding the fact we have written you severally letters soliciting same.

"The strongest proof we can present that you will make no mistake in favoring us with your orders is that we are regularly supplying, by actual count Jan. 1, 1901, 187,879 customers throughout the United States.

"Let us ship you by express, prepaid, four full quart bottles of seven-year-old double copper distilled rye subject to your approval; when you receive and test it if not found entirely satisfactory in every respect, return it at our expense; otherwise, remit us $3.20 in payment. Shipment will be made in plain sealed case, no marks or brands to indicate contents.

"IS THERE ANY REASON WHY WE SHOULD NOT ENJOY YOUR PATRONAGE?

"There are two good reasons why we are in a position to supply you better goods for less money than can be purchased elsewhere."

That letter was written clearly by a party who considers his feelings hurt; it is really discouraging to business energy to write several letters and not get an order.

Three is a grown chicken in this city that has been in prison since its "early infancy," several months ago and has not seen in all that time the sun or the full light of a day. It is a prisoner under a house. One day the mother hen was leading the brood about the yard. One of the little chicks was a daring adventurer, and seeing a small hole in the brick wall upon which the house sat, he walked in, and to his surprise, tumbled some distance on the inside. The inquisitive little fellow soon perceived that his rashness had gotten him into trouble. The small hole he had walked into was about even with the ground on the outside of the wall, but the ground under the house and inside the wall was much lower. So when chick tumbled down, he could not get back up and out. Good old mama hen, having so many little children to look after, never missed him, and from that day little chick was shut up from the world and his kind, buried alive. One of the children of the household happened to see the little stray one when it entered the hole, and to that fact it owes its preservation to this day. For the children, being unable to get the chick out, or to get in themselves, have carefully dropped food through the crack for it each day for months. Being carefully feed and given water the little prisoner grew up in his lonely prison to be a big chicken, but when he grew large enough to jump up as far as the hole, he had grown too large to get through it, and so, to this day, he is in the narrow confines of his prison house.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of static or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

SOMETHING NEW

The UNIVERSAL VEGETABLE SLICER is unequalled for slicing all vegetables. The knives of this machine are of the finest quality of cutlery steel, carefully hardened and tempered and ground to a keen edge and the arrangement of the hinged lid makes it impossible to cut the fingers. It is adjusted to cut thin or coarse instantly by turning the thumbnut at the end of the shaft.

In other slicers but one vegetable can be sliced at a time, in the universal as many can be sliced at one time as the hopper will contain, thereby saving much time for the housewife.

Stands and don't you forget it. The State Normal and Industrial College, Greensboro, N. C., bought the same piano in 1896, 1897 and 1900. Dr. McIver, who looks carefully after the interest of the college, gave all the dealers and branch piano houses a chance to compete and a number competed by pricing their pianos, while others put their pianos by the side of the old and tried EMERSON, which came off victorious the third time. The Emerson piano will stand by and always gives that satisfaction that pleases the owner. Call and see them.

THURSDAY, MARCH 21.

Elsewhere appears a card from Mayor Taylor in which it is stated that he will not be a candidate for re-election. Without any knowledge of who will be candidates, or what the issues may be, we take the liberty of expressing the hope that the city may not be subjected to the discord which usually attends a municipal election. In this connection it may not be inappropriate to say that, in our opinion, Mr. Taylor has made a record creditable to himself and satisfactory to the city which he has served for three successive terms.

It is stated that Mr. Francis D. Winston will be appointed a judge of one of the new superior court districts. We take this to be only a partial fulfillment of Mr. Winston's ambition. It will be recollect that this gentleman's desire, as expressed in a famous letter, was to be a judge and ride the district with Solicitor Geo. H. White, colored. If he is to be judge, it is a pity that he will be deprived of congenial association in making his rounds of the courts.

Our readers should not overlook the fact that the legislature of Maryland yesterday made into law the bill which has for its object the disfranchisement of 50,000 illiterate voters, the most of whom are negroes. Maryland is not strictly a Southern state, but she is taking on some Southern ways. There will be no constitutional amendment as in the case of North Carolina, but the disfranchisement will be accomplished by an election law which makes it impossible for an illiterate man to perform the act of voting.

Mr. Carnegie has no sooner received a vote of thanks from New York for a gift of $5,000,000 for libraries than he ups and prepares to give a like amount to Philadelphia. Nothing shows so well the magnificent prospects open to men in this country as the fact that the man who is today giving away millions at a time began on nothing but brains and muscle.

The Winston Sentinel of yesterday says that a movement is on foot to build a $100,000 cotton mill in North Winston of the co-operation plan, and that there is considerable encouragement of the plan. We have no disposition to cry down any efforts that little faith in the construction and management of big enterprises on the co-operation plan.

If the trial now on hand at Raleigh results in bringing to light the true character of some people as meddlers and mischief makers, it will not have resulted in vain.

CLARK AT THE BOTTOM OF IT.

and I confused the two cases, and now you try to make a to-do about it."

Judge Montgomery explained that a claim against the state for carpets or mules was a very different matter from a State officer's salary which was provided for by law.

After saying that the authorities Judge Clark quoted in his dissents failed to satisfy him, Mr. Watson said that the Senate was to pass on this case and Judge Montgomery retorted that he talked to him like he was a boy; of course he knew that.

When asked about his decision in White vs. Auditor, and his course, he replied candidly that when two courses lay open to him as a judge, one leading to a clash with another branch of the government and the other just as safe and sound law, and not leading to such a clash he would adopt the latter.

Mr. Watson asked if the fact that his mandamus was an encroachment on the judiciary and that caused the judges to hesitate.

"There was no hesitation. Furches spoke quickly to the point; Douglas with more polish and Faircloth in his monosyllabic way. There was no hesitation."

Judge Montgomery did not know that the money would not be paid except on a mandamus. When three judges told Col. Kenan to issue the writ he said "that settles it," meaning that Col. Kenan had got the advice he sought from a majority and there was nothing else for him to do. It was while explaining the meaning of the words, "that settles it," that Judge Montgomery complained of being laughed at.

The cross examination was then concluded and Mr. Watson said: "I have not intended to be disrespectful in the examination."

"I am glad to hear you say so, I know your disposition and understand it, but I did not like being laughed at; no man does."

A Colored Divine Writes.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

In the columns of The Telegram we find that sad occurrence of the burning at the stake in the state of Texas, a negro, and a few months ago another in Louisiana. The situation is dreadful to think of. I for one condemn lynching. I think it cruel but I condemn also the way our people are going on. A man that would approach a man's house and destroy the precious jewel is not fit to live, but we ought to let the laws of the land take their course.

What the negro needs is to be taught high morality as well as industrial education. He was trained wrong by men for the want of loaves and fishes when he was set free. The pulpit has become the centre of attraction for the negro. The only way we see is for them to be taught from pulpit in a right way. The pulpit cannot do all. The fireside must act. All persons ought to find some employment for their sons and daughters. What the negro needs is a leader. The condition of the negro is the same as it was with the children of Israel when they left Egypt, only they have no leader now to carry them to the promised land.

Booker T. Washington has made a wonderful success from the pine school house to the mammoth building for the working of the negro to prove that he can labor. We have learned men such as Prof. Miller Dubois, but we want no man on high ground of morality that we may see a stop to cruelty among our people, then we, as leaders of the race must put aside every thing and take up the great moral question among our race, it is time now that we do come to some standard in life. But I pray that the great Anglo-Saxon race who had all the chances in the world, will consider that there are some among us of high moral purpose. If our schools would do their duty we would succeed. It is becoming so that among our race a man whose character has been stamped cannot hold any position of trust among us, unless he is put upon us and we cannot help it. There has been so much said concerning industrial education; that is all right, but it is for the race that has had a better opportunity than we to teach our women high morals. No race can rise above their women. We have done well but we must come to the conclusion and that is improvement at the top. In every city there is a place with a disgusting name and when you find out who lives there it is negroes. What a shame; we ought to use Mrs. Nations' hatchet on such places.

BARBERS ARE BUSY MEN.

Customer Asserts That They Take Hundreds of Strokes Every Shave.

The man with the whiskers like a stable scrubbing brush straightened up in the barber chair at a big downtown hostelry one day not so very long ago, and after the genial barber had squirted some confined air into his hair, ears and nostrils, said to the white-coated manipulator of the razor:

"Young fellow, you look as if you might be a pretty smart man. Now, in shaving me, how many strokes do you think you made with your razor?" "Oh, I don't know, I am sure," replied the barber, relates the Chicago Chronicle.

"Well, give a guess. I didn't ask you to tell me just exactly how many. I only want you to tell me how many you think."

"Well, I presume about 150, or possibly 175."

"You are a good guesser, I don't think," replied the man in the chair. "If I should break the news to you abruptly you would have a fit. So I will just give you the first figure. That figure is seven."

"Then I was too high? I made only 75 strokes," answered the tonsorialist.

"You made just 757 strokes."

The barber gasped.

"That's just what you did, and if you don't believe it you ask somebody to count the next time you shave a fellow. I hardly ever get shaved now when I don't count the number of strokes a barber makes over my face. It's never lower than 500, and many times the number is even more than you have made to-day. I count strokes only when you make a downward movement with the razor."

"Hullie gee," ejaculated the barber. "I shave about 35 persons a day." Then he picked up a piece of paper and began to figure. "I'm goin' to strike, that's a cinch. Too many strokes for me. If I count 600 for every person, that makes 21,000. All that for two dollars. Nit, I'm goin' to paste bills."

The barber counted the number of strokes he made on the next customer, and when he reached 775 he stopped, although he knew he had not done a good job.

FACTOR IN WORLD'S POLITICS.

The New Federation of Australia Must Hereafter Be Considered.

Australia is to Great Britain the most valuable of all her colonies, writes Hugh M. Lusk, in the North American Review. The external influence of Australia in the South Pacific is bound to make itself felt before long. Those who know Australia best will have the least doubt that she will find means ere long to use that influence for purposes beneficial to herself. Her people were far from pleased with what was done in the case of Samoa; and it is safe to say that no such policy of concession will ever command the assent of united Australia. The sphere of her first interests will, for the present, be confined mainly to the Pacific and Indian oceans to the south of the equator. She will be interested in the Loyalty group, where France is established, and in the New Hebrides, where she is very anxious to establish herself. She will be solicitous about the Solomon islands, part of which are at present recognized as German territory, and she will take a very deep interest in the future of New Guinea, part of which belongs to Germany, and the rest, beyond the British section, is understood to form part of Holland's great but little used estate in the eastern archipelago.

These will undoubtedly be Australia's first care, but she will not be content with these for very long. Siam, French and southern China and Borneo are natural markets for her trade, which in the next ten years will be a rapidly increasing one, and, in relation to all these, she will expect to exercise large influence.

At the neck, sleeves and front edges of the cloak are ruchings of mouseline de soie, tinted gold color to match the lining of cloth of gold. — Washington Star.

This in the south is a breakfast or dinner dish.—N. Y. Post.

in a barn in the country, was burned.The fire made a bright blaze and many people living in the city saw the light from it. The children, who are orphans, have not lived on the place since the burning of their home, but were living with relatives in different parts of the country.

The fire is thought to have been incendiary. A bicycle track was found leading to within a short distance of the barn, and then running around and returning to town. The track was traced back into the city.

A negro riding a bicycle was seen last night some time after the fire occurred near and coming towards the city, and suspicion points towards him as having had something to do with the fire.Some of the children are living with their uncle, Mr. T. G. McLean, on Bragg street. They had hauled some lumber yesterday to their place and were preparing to begin the erection of a new dwelling.

HIS LIFE WAS SAVED.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with typhoid fever that ran into pneumonia. My lungs became hardened.
I was so weak I couldn't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief.
I continued to use it and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all throat and lung trouble.
Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial

COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. J. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice.
He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure stomach and liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever.
It's positively guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at
C. E. Holton's drug store.REMARKABLE CURES OF RHEU-MATISM.

Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N. C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Palm Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case.
First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Palm Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. For sale by A. E. Holton's drug store.

NO RIGHT TO UGLINESS

The woman who is lovely in face form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a rundown invalid. Only 50 cents at C. E.
Holton's drug store.A: GOOD COUGH MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN."I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va.
"We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as the best cough medicine for children as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by C. E. Holton.
